On May 20, 2025, the Argentine Government extended its lower export tax on wheat and barley of 9.5 percent through March 2026. All the other commodities will return to their higher previous levels on July 1, 2025.

On January 27, 2025, amidst a severe drought, the government through Decree 38/2025, announced a partial lowering of export taxes on soybeans, sunflower, corn, sorghum, wheat, and barley to alleviate farmers' critical situation. In the case of soybeans, the lowering was from 33 percent to 26 percent and for grains, the reduction was from 12 percent to 9.5 percent.

Commodity	Export Tax January 2025	Export Tax Through June 2025	Export Tax from July 2025
Wheat	12%	9.5%	9.5%*
Barley	12%	9.5%	9.5%*
Corn	12%	9.5%	12%
Sorghum	12%	9.5%	12%
Soybeans	33%	26%	33%
Sunflower	7%	5%	7%

* Through March 31, 2026

This announcement comes as winter planting of winter crops, mostly wheat and barley, has just begun and gives a strong signal to producers. They will be able to market their MY 2025/26 production with lower export taxes and thus higher farmer prices. Some analysts calculate that this announcement will result in farmers' gaining approximately $5 per ton.

The agricultural sector applauded this measure and expressed that this is the path to continue recovering farmers' competitiveness which will result in future larger grains and oilseeds production.
